

Career internship plans

My first internship will be in the summer of 2012. I plan on working with Frito-Lay at a distribution plant in Portland Oregon. There I hope to work well and help in packaging the boxes with chips. This will give me some experience and knowledge to how Frito-lay works and also will give me work experience. By working here I could possibly get to know many people in the supply chain part of Frito-Lay and get a better opportunity through them to get a future job with Frito-Lay. I really like there goals and structure of work. I know them to be very organized and efficient in what they do. This is one of my choices for my first internship.

My second choice for my first internship would be to work at an Accounting job with a company back at my home that does pension plans. Here I could learn more about accounting and more likely to have a job around people I know. This can also give me experience so that when I go to any other accounting firm I can have beginning experience of accounting and so I could have an option with an accounting degree. It is also a good opportunity to learn from a mentor that I know and that will be more likely to want to teach me all about accounting.

For my Second internship opportunity I am more hesitant about what kind of Company that I will possibly work for. I hope to go with the Brigham Young University Idaho career trips. Here I can have a good possibility of getting a job and meeting with the companies themselves. This is possibly how I could get a job in my field. I also will seek opportunities in the internship program that our school has. Right know it will be at least five years till I will get a second internship job. I hope that as I get closer to my Junior and Senior year that I will have a better experience from a mission and previous internship that when I go on a career trip or look for internship opportunities that I will find a good option for me. What I will be looking for is a job in Accounting so after I graduate then maybe I will continue and get the job opportunity beyond my Internship.
